

ABSTRACT

An optical metrology target is provided and has a first periodic structure and a second periodic structure. The first periodic structure has at least two features and a first pitch, and the second periodic structure has at least two features and a second pitch. The optical metrology target is illuminated with a light source, and an optical signal from the optical metrology target is received and analyzed.

10

40074791.doc